January sometimes a bed is made to give a small planting extra early, but there can be no regular dependence upon these winter beds, and frequently no good results from them. If made at all, they have to be made in such a warm southern hillside that when the warmer seasons come on they burn like tinder. Many farmers now do not make these winter beds at all, but save their certificing material for a large spring bed. fertilizing material for a large spring bed. These farmers seem the most successful atter all, and the custom is becoming more after all, and the custom is becoming more general. This spring bed is supplemented usually by a "branch bed," made in a low, moist spot, so that in case of a severe drought, which may burn the winter bed, or even the spring bed, the branch bed may hold sufficient moisture to withstand the effects of the heat and drought. These branch beds may be made any time in March, and they often save a crop, although it can never be a full crop, as the plants come out juley and tender, and the lot suns of June and July will burn them to a cinder when planted unless there happens to come a cloudy spell at the time, which seldom occurs. All things taken into consideration, and the experience of the oldest and best farmers has thus made the early part of March the favorite time for tobacco-bed making. That the spot selected must have a southern exposure or be protected from the northern winds, all successful planters are agreed, but the character of the soil and the fertilizers to be used are subjects upon which there is a diversity of opinion. Some farmers prefer the light gray soil, which is usually covered with holly and ity bushes; others prefer pine land, well covered with shatters, or a black, loamy spot. It seems that as a fertilizer stable cleanings are preferred, as they cause considerable heat by fermentation. Hog pen and hen house scrapings are preferred by others, as they claim that the stable cleanings produce too much heat and will cause the plants to burn. A number of farmers object to using any farm fertilizer on the beds. They claim that it is better to use what can be gathered on the farm for top dressing for grass and to use on tobacco beds commercial fertilizers. This practice is obtaining considerable following now, and farmers who have tried it say that they are better pleased with the results than they were with the old way. As a top dressing after the plants have come up commercial fertilizer only seem to give satisfaction. A former practice was to top-dress with rich dirt and scrapings around bearing general. This spring bed is supplemented usually by a "branch bed," made in a low,

Is the Cowboy Planist a Fraud ? A recent notice of the performance in New York of Babel, the cowboy planist attracted the attention of a leading jeweller of Temple, who address the following letter to Mr. J. N. Pattison, of this city:

Pattison, of this city:

TEMPLE, Texas, Feb. 28, 1885.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will find a clipping in regard to one Babel. I cannot help answering such barefaced falsehoods as it contains. Babel is a professional plantst, and his father was a first-class teacher of music. He was raised in Seguine, Texas, can read music at first sight, and play as well as most professional plauists. The last time I saw him he was travelling for a music house at Benham, Texas. He played in J. S. Wheeler's beer saloon here for more than a year. For the truth of what I saw I refer to L. Barr, grocery merchant, of Temple, Texas, as he has known Babel from a child. Yours, &c. H. Sandham.

A Great Rivalry. From the Esteline (Dak.) Bell.

Said the mayor of Minneapolia to an alderman: "I hear that another family moved into St. Paul yesterday."

"Yes."
"How large?"
"Man an' wite and four children."
"That's bad. What are we doing?"
"Well, one pair of twins is reported from the Fourth ward, and two immigrants from New York have just got here. I expect a friend and his wife and one child to arrive on the noon train. I think we'll manage to keep up with that one-horse town down the river.

An Execus of Farm Hands.

A Raleigh dispatch states that since the A Raleigh dispatch states that since the first of the year not less than 7,000 and probably 10,000 laborers have left North Carolina for the states south and for Arkanass, and there is now demand for farm hands that cannot be supplied. The cause for this exodus, it is said, is to be found in the lien laws, the system of farming, and the bad crops of the past three years.

Our Progress.

As stages are quickly abandoned with the completion of railroads, so the huge, drastic, cathartic pills, composed of crude and built medicines, are quickly abandoned with the introduction of Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Fellets," which are sugar coated, and little larger than mustard seeds, but composed of highly concentrated vegetable extracts. By druggists.

The farmer tired with everwork blesses the great pain cure—St. Jacobs Oil.

Not Symptoms, But The Disease.

It would seem to be a truth appreciable by all, and especially by professors of the healing art, that to remove the disease, not to alleviate its symptoms, should be the chief aim of medication. Yet in how many instances do we see this truth admitted in theory, ignored in practice. The reason that Hostotter's Stomach Bitters is successful in so many cases, with which remedies previously tried were inadequate to cope, is attributable to the fact that it is a medicine which reaches and removes the causes of the various maladies to which it is adapted. Indigestion, fever and ague, liver complaint, gont, rheumatism, disorder of the bowels, urinary affections and other maladies are not pallisted merely, but rooted out by it, it goes to the fountain head. It is really, not nominally, a radical remody, and it endows the system with an amount of vigor which is best protection artists disease.

If the gentlemen whose tips pressed the lady's snowy brow and thus caught a severe cold had but used Dr. Bull's Cough Byrup, no doctor's bill would have been necessary.

Some gentles proposes to introduce paper shirts. Wearing paper shirts means bearing rhoumatism. With Salvation Oil, however, paper shirts might still be a success. Price to cents.

John H. Kiwhall, of Westheld, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., writes May 20, 1885, that he was auffering with Rheumatic Fever, and had Constipation so bad that many times he went twelve days without an evacuation. Given up by physicians, he as a last resort took Brandreth's Pilis, two every night for seven weeks. Now he is an ontirely well man, and never uses any other medicine for himself or family. He will answer any inquiries.

CARD—We know some of our sompetitors have abused our reputation on secount of hoding sales and reducing the price of a first-class job, but we challenge them again, as before, produce as much first-class stock, or construct a finer vehicle of any style. We mean business, and those it concerns can have satisfaction by calling on or addressing Norbeck & Miley.
